About Dr. Rachelle Wolosoff

Dr. Rachelle Wolosoff's credentials include a doctorate in Education Leadership. She continues to teach part time at the university level in addition to her full time role as a college search consultant. Dr. Wolosoff has consulted at the K-12 grade levels. She has achieved the teaching profession's highest honor, National Board Certification, which requires satisfying the top teaching standards in the profession. Only approximately 2% of all teachers in the United States achieve National Board Certification. Additionally, Dr. Wolosoff has been featured in numerous newspaper articles, professional journals, television and radio broadcasts. She has studied at the Harvard Graduate School of Education in the Change Leadership Group. Rachelle is the proud mom to two college graduate daughters. In a prior career, she was a certified public accountant and has worked for one of the world's largest accounting firms as a senior manager. This gives her the firsthand ability to understand the connection between education and business and the need for education to be meaningful for learners.

What students and parents are saying about Dr. Rachelle Wolosoff:

International Testimonials

“Dr. Wolosoff is meticulous and organized in her approach. She helps my daughter clarify her thought process and focus on what is essential in her preparation for college.”

Mother of Grade 11 student, Singapore

“I received many interesting articles, websites and latest university application updates from Dr. Wolosoff which broadens my view on university expectations”

Senior student of International School in Beijing

“I found our work sessions not only efficient and productive but also enjoyable.”

Student, New York

“Dr. Wolosoff is able to motivate our student to take ownership of the application process herself. Although schools provide the college process assistance, the one-on-one experience spurs her to think outside the box.”

Father of a junior, Europe.
